City Is Airmail Centre

Writing another chapter in the story of the growth of Edmonton from a frontier fort to its destined place as one of the key cities on continental air routes, and marking another step in the development of Canada's airmail services, the Edmonton-Lethbridge leg of the new airmail service operated by Trans-Canada Airlines, was officially opened Saturday night.

As the silver, twin-motored Lockheed monoplane CF-74, piloted by Captain Arthur Rankin, coasted away from the Edmonton airport at 8:15 p.m. on the inaugural flight, nearly 5,000 astounded Edmontonians watched the green and red wings of the plane disappear among the stars which dotted the cloudless sky.

The takeoff was preceded by an impressive program of short addresses by leading citizens and a pageant of historical interest arranged by the aviation committee of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce.

Shortly after 7 p.m. spectators began to arrive at the airport. Some came on foot, many by streetcar, while a steady stream of automobiles rolled northwards down Purge Avenue, by 8:30 the field was lined with automobiles.

Special detachments of Royal Canadian Mounted Police, the Legion of Frontiersmen and the city police were on hand to take care of the crowd. Excited spectators who

PROVINCE OPENS LARGE HIGHWAY PLAN MONDAY

On Monday, 152 secondary and district highways construction projects were under way in various parts of the province. The northern part, according to Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, these projects are part of the main highways construction work proceeding on the Jasper highway west of this city, between Red Deer and Crossfield and elsewhere.

Mr. Fallow estimated that before the winter there would be about 200 such projects under way.

These projects are being carried out under the provincial government's interim program and enables farmers to work on the roads and in addition to provide themselves with a grub-stake for the winter.

DROWNED CHILD FOUND SUNDAY EAST OF CITY

Body Of Joan Holloway Is Recovered—Girl Faces Murder Charge

Body of 3½-year-old Joan Holloway, 9515 109 avenue, whom Nellie Adomchuk, 18-year-old mental defective is said to have drowned in the Saskatchewan river under the Oliver Bar bridge late Thursday, September 25, was found Sunday at 11 a.m. in the river at Oliver by Carman Valley, acting caretaker of the Canadian Industries Limited explosives storehouse at Oliver.

Findings of the little girl's body clinched a search conducted by RCMP, city police, Boy Scouts, and her anxious parents since her disappearance from the Gwyn playhouse on the afternoon of September 25.

The Adomchuk girl, whose parents reside at 1022 102 street, was charged with vagrancy since the Holloway child's disappearance. She was brought to the city from Fort Saskatchewan Monday morning and appeared in city police court on a charge of vagrancy. No plea was entered by the accused, and she was not represented by counsel. The magistrate remanded her to October 11. The vagrancy charge under which she has been held since her arrest was withdrawn.

She was arrested September 23 and made a statement to police.

Chamberlain Gives New Promise of Union to France

Message to Daladier Sets France at Rest Over Anglo-French Agreement—King George Thanks Prime Minister For Splendid Work

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Prime Minister Chamberlain gave a new pledge of Great Britain's union with France in a personal message to Premier Daladier announced Sunday night.

At the same time the King issued a message to his subjects in praise of their "calm resolve during these critical days" and of the Prime Minister's "magnificent efforts" for peace.

Mr. Chamberlain will face parliament in a momentous session to report on the Munich two-power accord for ceding Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland to Germany and on his agreement with Chancellor Hitler for continuing the fight for peace.

His message to Daladier, in which he associated France with the spirit of the "No more war" pact, was interpreted as designed to quell French distrust of the Anglo-German deal and a sign Mr. Chamberlain meant to be prepared to stand France to achieve a similar understanding with Germany.

The country was watching for the next, possibly dramatic, move the

Premier Is Attacked By Retired Minister; Hitler In Sudetenland

By J. F. SANDERSON

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Prime Minister Chamberlain, addressing a tumultuous House of Commons, today declared fresh opportunities for disarmament have been opened as a result of the four-power agreement at Munich.

Mr. Chamberlain, firm in his defence of the Munich negotiations, stated, however, that "disarmament on the part of this country will never again be unilateral. We tried that once. It nearly brought us to disaster. If we are to have any chance of coming by steps and with the active co-operation of other nations."

Mr. Chamberlain and Lord Bessborough, from his defence of the Munich negotiations, stated, however, that "disarmament on the part of this country will never again be unilateral. We tried that once. It nearly brought us to disaster. If we are to have any chance of coming by steps and with the active co-operation of other nations."

Through the 17-mile ride from Widenau to Eger Hitler was accompanied by a cheering mob of thousands. The Fuehrer rode the entire distance standing in an open automobile. His face solemn and his arm ever raised in salute.

He spoke in the marketplace of Eger, one of the "Czechs" of Sudetenland, from a platform elaborately decorated with flowers and in their picturesque costumes.

"Once this Germany, this greater Germany, has been united as one nation, as one people, this future day will come."

He stepped unexpectedly before a cheering crowd at Eger, in the short and only part of the four Sudetenland towns his troops will occupy before Saturday.

WITH THE GERMAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION IN SUDETENLAND, Oct. 3.—Chancellor Hitler, triumphantly following the army across the newest border of growing Germany, declared today that "never will this land be torn from the Reich."

Welcoming Sudetenland within the fold of greater Germany, the Fuehrer told its inhabitants his greeting was "at the same time a pledge" and invited them to join "our march into a great German future."

Following his army through the heart of Sudetenland, he made two short and urgent speeches, one to a cheering mob of thousands, the other to a cheering mob of thousands.

Air Mail Again

Mail planes are flying the western routes again, which they have not done since they were grounded as an economy measure in the early days of the depression. The service is resumed under conditions which guarantee the prompt delivery of the mail. It is a fact that this time has come to stay, it may be confidently assumed. That it will draw a steadily increasing patronage is to be supposed, as it did on the former trial until the life was squeezed out of trade by the paralyzing influence of shortened buying power and falling demand.

Something of a mild revolution in business conditions and methods is in prospect as a result of the quicker communication thus provided between distant points. Orders will reach their destination in less time, and the goods get started on the return journey. A letter mailed in Edmonton which would have been delivered in Winnipeg the following morning. That illustrates the time-saving possible in all directions, and gives a hint of the faster pace at which business transactions will move. Social contacts will be closer, too, as friends far apart in miles are brought nearer by the speed of the mail.

Ample time has been taken in organizing, and with reliable planes, proper ground facilities and a well trained and experienced personnel, the new air mail gets under way with every promise of giving uninterrupted service.

The Starting Point

The imminent danger passed, it is in order now to survey what exactly was done in ending Sudetenland to the Fuehrer, what change has come about in his position because of the ending of the outlook for Europe is affected. This is the world's business, because the dismembered state was set up by international action to which every important country in the world was a party, and if France and Britain were the direct agents in permitting the transfer of territory, they are not to be forgotten that they were bearing the brunt of a quarrel that was by no means theirs only. Resistance for them meant war, instant and bloody; for others, also responsible for the root cause of the quarrel, it did not necessarily mean anything. These two are "on the spot"; the others were not.

How much Mr. Hitler has gained in man-power, resources and military equipment will not be known in detail for weeks. A recent estimate is that 26 divisions of his army are by this change released for service on other frontiers. This is not to the east has been opened to him is obvious. That his prestige has been strengthened, and the temptation to aggression also strengthened, can scarcely be doubted.

But the sinister thing is that whatever these gains may amount to, they will ever use by may choose to make them. They were made by the threat to launch slaughter and destruction upon Europe. It is in light of that fact that the surrender, and what it implies and predicts, must be assessed.

Europe Gets a Close-Up

The young manhood of Europe has no yearning to seek "glory at the cannon's mouth" and the parents have not forgotten the agony of dread and grief they suffered twenty years ago. That is the real meaning of the wild demonstrations of joy in London, Berlin, Paris and Rome when news came that a respite had been granted and peace would continue, for a time at least.

With all respect to the glorious oratory of the Fuehrer and the due, and the super-confident declarations of popular enthusiasm for their policy of force, the "will to war" is apparently absent from the minds of the people of Germany and Italy as from the people of Britain and France. For they did not wait to cheer until they knew Hitler had won; they were cheering before the Munich conference opened. If those cheers meant anything they meant that the populace of Germany and Italy were more interested in being allowed to go on living than in what happened to Sudetenland.

Young Europe for the first time last week looked into the face of reality and got a faint glimpse of what war meant—for it. And the older ones looked into the past and saw the same panorama of death and wounds and misery, as they had not seen it since 1918. The reaction of both groups, in all countries, was the same; they did not want war. Whatever they wanted, they hoped beyond all else to be spared that. The dictators may choose to disregard the fact, and the warning it carries—they cannot have failed to recognize it.

Words From Moscow

There was one sour note in the joyful chorus with which Europe celebrated its escape from war by surrender to Hitler. It came from Moscow, in the clear observation, "France has lost her greatness"—and was echoed at Geneva in the sarcasm of Litvinoff. Whatever one may think of the censure, which must be taken as applying to Britain in proportion, the fact that Russia registered the protest is important in itself. France and Britain may remember that remark, and what led up to it, with bitterness in days to come.

Russia, it may be recalled, declared without hesitation that it would back France in supporting Czechoslovakia. There is even reason to think that the stinging language of the Foreign Commission resolved the uncertainty of France and Britain and spurred them into making the eleventh hour stand they did make. In any case, the backing of Russia tipped the scales of chance against the aggressor and made certain that the contest would be out-matched in men, equipment and resources, even if Italy threw in its lot with him. Russia stood as ready, if not more ready to fight for the threatened little democracy than the great democracies themselves.

But when it came to a conference to decide the issue of peace or war, Russia was left out. That in itself was a concession to the aggressor and his ally, but it was also an affront to the ally of France and Britain. Moscow, it is quite clear from the comment itself, has taken note of the slight. Will it remember this at a future time the democracies have to call on it again for help?

Religion Day By Day

HE LOVED EMILY DICKINSON

Years ago I knew a clergyman who was much like Emily Dickinson had loved. He walked graciously as one born to the people. Dignity and charm invested him. His speech, like all his ways, was tinged with beauty. He seemed a romantic being, apt and common sense.

Long after he died, I learned the secret. He was the same who Emily Dickinson had loved, as revealed after the poet's death. This was the soulmate that had rested upon his shoulders. He had lived and walked in the memory of a rare love.

And I knew many other men and women, above the level of their lot, who have been glorified in the common days by the conscious love of Christ.

Lift up to O Lord, into the glory of the life which is yours, my dear Jesus. May all whom you love know that we are lovers of Jesus Christ, Amen.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

If civilization persists for another 5,000 years—and there is assurance that it will—the inhabitants of North America in the year A.D. 4993 will be digging up the Westinghouse capsule, buried last week at Flushing, L.I., for their enlightenment. It should be less difficult to read the English and German messages than the Egyptian tablets and Sumerian bricks.

A JOKE ON POSTERITY

The distinguished Nobel prize-winners, Dr. Millikan and Mann will interest posterity by their common fear lest civilization in 1939 be doomed in the war between the dictators and the democracies.

Perhaps the curious North Americans of 5,000 years hence will want to know the identity of the mysterious Mr. Nobel who used to give generous cash rewards to men in this age who rendered signal service to literature, chemistry, physics, medicine and world peace. Won't they laugh when they learn it was the man who invented dynamite.

There's a story told about a Frenchman, listening to a group of English playing baccharat. The conversation ran like this: "I go two, two"—"Two to two"—"Two to two, too." Remark: The Frenchman "Speaking English" is playing the trumpet. It is a "lost-a-voice" too.

Since the New Deal measures in force in the United States have displaced names for companies and public utilities, it is not surprising that the Central Canada Company is often referred to as CCC of CCC. He is advocating co-operation between big business and the government. Someone has been trying with the idea of Mr. Conway visiting the Commodity Credit Corporation on the way to some boys' scout camp. The Conservation Corps are being taken through.

But Brother Jenks of The Bulletin would headline that story "CCC of CCC See CCC See CCC See."

Lateening over the radio to Herr Hitler whooping it up, before cheering through the "Hitler Youth" last Monday, I got a vivid impression of the dangerous potentialities of the radio as an instrument of propaganda in a totalitarian state.

THE MENACE OF THE RADIO

Forbidden in the German press. Passions of the German people are played upon by exaggerated and fictitious stories of Czech brutality in Sudeten Germany. They are not allowed to read, deny, nor are they allowed to learn how the rest of the world views the issue.

Then comes an order from the German Office of News Agency. Announcing that the Fuehrer will deliver an address, it says:

"The Fuehrer will deliver an address in the Reich. To all those possessing radio receiving sets it will be available. Those who do not have this advantage are advised to purchase a radio-gather around public loud-speakers, under the direction of the local party and group leaders."

"No man, woman or child in the Reich must fail to be listeners or witnesses this historic proceeding."

The marvel of eighty million people listening to the actual words from their leader's lips is great, but how great the danger when an oratorical tornado like Hitler lets himself loose upon people devoid of knowledge of the truth and the freedom to make independent judgment.

Waves of excited cries from his audience sounded like the baying of wolves. The hysteria was to be felt in every city and hamlet in the Reich.

Laughter such as greet the tricks of mountebanks rang out from the group I listened to, when Hitler reached the peak of his speech, where with tears in his eyes, he proclaimed himself defender of the rights of persecuted minorities in Europe. But were from the Reich and free to think. The concentration camp awaited any of the Hitler's rays of light.

And free to think. The concentration camp awaited any of the Hitler's rays of light.

Old Country Letter

By J. E. NORCROSS

LONDON, Eng.—(By-Mail.) The latest unemployment figures show a slight decline. As compared with those for July 18, the return for August 15 gives a reduction of 13,874.

It is just a year since the decline in employment began and only once or twice during the period has the downward progress been arrested by a saving of a few thousand in the same way.

According to the August statistics there were 4,020,000 more unemployed than in August, 1937, the present total being 1,192,242.

The number of insured persons in employment, approximately 11,402,000, is greater for August 1938, but about 320,000 less than that of a year ago.

Unemployment was, as a matter of course, one of the issues discussed when the Trades Union Congress met at Blackpool early in September.

Fears were expressed that the country was in the early stages of a slump such as that of 1929-32, and that the progress downward would be accelerated when the re-armament program was completed.

At regarding this latter it may be stated that the peak of armament production will not be reached until 1940, possibly later, and that it is not likely to drop off so steadily thereafter as to have a disastrous effect on employment.

The T.U.C. demands, however, that the government establish a national planning board to prepare for an unemployment crisis. A long resolution embodying this was carried unanimously.

Your Health

Studies made among different groups show that on an average, 15% of the people have 1 cold a year; 30% have 2 colds a year; 25% have 3 colds a year; 14% have 4 colds a year; and 14% have 5 or more a year. Only 1% of the people who report no colds at all. The cold is one of our most common ailments, causing more people to lose time from work than any other disorder.

I have studied many thousands of patients suffering from colds and it seems to me that there are only three fundamental causes of colds: FATIGUE, OVER-EATING and LACK OF SUNSHINE. In many parts of the world, the amount of available sunlight is sharply decreased during the fall and winter months, at which periods colds are the most prevalent.

Fall and winter colds may usually be blamed on the fact that during these months there are the heaviest frosts. As the cold weather comes on, almost everyone develops an appetite for the rich, hearty foods, and these almost invariably form the main part of the meal.

The body becomes so stuffed with the excess of starch that it attempts to throw out some of the excess water by producing a mucous secretion from the mucous membrane, causing it to be inflamed. Those who become over-tired and overworked during the winter months are particularly liable to catch colds.

The fatigue itself may be due to staying up too late at night, too many parties, or to any other excess which wastes energy and interferes with sleep.

One of the contributing causes of colds is lack of sunlight and fresh air. It is well-known that the sun's rays are beneficial in all sorts of weather, have less trouble with colds than those who indulge themselves in over-heated rooms. In fact, the cold is so common among those who work in cold climates that it is almost a occupational disease of the office worker.

What Is Your Opinion?

A great many interesting letters received by the Editor of The Bulletin are too long for publication. Our correspondents would do well to study brevity. A limit of 350 words is suggested.

Editor, Bulletin: Dr. Mann became Conservative leader. I have scanned his speeches in vain for something definite, constructive and practical. He might have led Canada toward a fuller and more abundant existence.

When he asked, August 1, "something precious is going from Canada: life as young men live the ambition to build and work their own homes" he told us something that thinking people have been waiting for a long time. His speech concluded with the statement that the end of his political career was to be "work and wages" security for the old "for fear of the future."

Our ears are almost worn out listening to those old victory-cries. The end of his political career was to be "work and wages" security for the old "for fear of the future." Our ears are almost worn out listening to those old victory-cries.

Looking Them Over

By Jack Kelly
Support Rallies
Bears Promising
A Wacky End

OVER 2,000 Grads supporters poured through the turnstiles of the Arena Saturday night to give concrete evidence that the world champions still have stalwart supporters, and don't think the Grads didn't appreciate that turnout.

The girls really appreciated that support and I must say that it made me feel a lot more confident about the future of our organization. Coach Perry Day declared after the game. "I can assure the fans that we are expecting Wichita to give us even tougher competition in the remaining games of the series. All incoming teams have done better in the second or third games of a series than in the first."

Wichita gives every promise of forcing the series into at least a fourth game. It takes two or three days for athletes to get used to the altitude here, the floor, and generally get their bearings. Coach Reynolds can also be relied on to adjust his machine to be more effective against the attack the Grads unleashed.

Fans of Edmonton and the surrounding district have made an impressive start toward showing the world that the greatest team ever assembled in girls' basketball will not have to die because it is too good. However, it is imperative that this support must be maintained throughout the balance of the series to really do the job right.

Tonight and Wednesday night will see the country points coming to bat. Few fans from the surrounding district could get away on Saturday night owing to late closing hours, but the Grads have thousands of supporters throughout northern and central Alberta who are just as proud of them as any Edmontonian. Ponka is one example of how this support is rallying. This town launched a drive to get enough fans to charter a special bus to come in for the Wednesday game. Now it will be at least two buses to haul the fans that responded to the move.

Fans can be assured of seeing girls' basketball at its best in the remaining games. All the extra experts will be wrong if the Wichita team doesn't take at least one game. However, even if they fail to turn this trick, they proved Saturday night that they can force the Grads to the limit. They'll be games worth anybody's money.

Golden Bears Show Promise

VARSITY's Golden Bears were bounced 35-0 by the Eskimos in Saturday's exhibition game, but don't think for a minute that Coach Broadfoot's collegians have the makings of a tough band of grid-iron. You will recall with a wince that the Calgary Bears beat the Eskimos 35-0 the first time they met this season.

The die was loaded against the Golden Bears Saturday. Coach Broadfoot has had to replace a lot of last year's regulars—and he has had to do it in the same length of time that it takes Jose Owens to sprint 100 yards. Varsity opened only last week, although a few players did get in some practice the week before. For collegians to tackle a Western Conference squad any time is a terrific undertaking, but to do it with only a week or less of practice is simply superhuman. Take a look at what the Bruins did in North Dakota, Saturday—and the Ducks have been playing and drilling for weeks.

Taken all around, the Golden Bears give promise of developing into a team that Varsity can be justly proud of. Given another week or two to work out more plays, particularly an aerial attack, and the Bears will be a mighty effective unit.

A Wacky End To A Wacky Year

BASEBALL historians will undoubtedly refer to the 1938 major league season as the "Wacky Year." The boys are still dizzy trying to figure out how it all happened. The National League race was as dizzy as a ham full of bladders. For awhile it looked like the Grads had the fight again, but injuries routed them. The Pittsburgh Pirates then came racing into the lead with the skill and crossbones flying merrily in the air. It looked as good for the Blue Sox as it did for the Pirates. The Pirates eliminated the Reds. Then, by gum, the Reds up and eliminate the Pirates on Saturday.

In the meantime the Cubs were foundering under Charley Grimm. Grady Harhart takes over the reins and what happens? The Cubs did what none of the experts believed was possible. They won 21 and tied for the first place in the National League. They won 21 and tied for the first place in the National League. They won 21 and tied for the first place in the National League.

Then just to put another screw twist on the season, Bob Feller of Cleveland found 18 hits for a new major league record in the final 14 of the season—only 14 games left. He walked seven batters, hit one with a pitch and yielded seven runs.

As the Cubs and Yankees get primed up for their world series encounter, the fans can't help but wonder if they really Chicago hitting hard and fast, or if they are just a bunch of boys playing a game.

Bob Cummings Will Wrestle Thomas Matzen

After Spencer Thomas climbed to the top of the mountain of "Bad Boy" Cummings and Soldier Thomas last Friday and added the title of "Bad Boy" to his list of accomplishments, he was ready to defend his title. "Bad Boy" has chosen to meet both of them in the ring at the same time this Friday night at the Memorial Hall with Louis Lavoie, the wrestling boxer stepping them off his back.

Promoter Cutler has not definitely decided to put Lavoie in the same ring with Cummings as he has as Cunniffing partner as yet. The idea, but not with a fight, for Cummings had guardian with him 21 times the season.

Aerial Attack Brings Victory For Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Oct. 3.—Winnipeg Blue Bombers' aerial attack was the dominating factor in a 16-6 victory over North Dakota State University in an exhibition football game here Saturday under United States rules.

ATTACK STOPPED

With their ground attack stopped throughout the first half by a charging North Dakota line, Winnipeg took to the air in the closing half with profitable results.

A Shirley to Marquardt pass paid the way for the game opening touchdown by Ray Bennett and the same pair collaborated in scoring the ball on North Dakota's one-yard line to set up Eddie James' scoring plunge.

ROLL END

The first snap came in the third quarter after Greg Kahl's 40-yard field goal in the first half. Kahl converted James' touchdown to complete the Winnipeg scoring.

Brilliant Ernie Wheeler sparked the only Dakota score, scoring around the end from his fullback position. He carried the ball to the first half. Kahl converted James' touchdown to complete the Winnipeg scoring.

Rorvig Hurt As Bronks Win Against Nodaks

CALGARY, Oct. 3.—Under American rules, Calgary Bronks, playing an exhibition football game, defeated North Dakota State University in a 16-6 victory here Saturday.

Brilliant offense and blocking enabled the Bronks' backfield to pile up big gains, bringing the score to 14 points in the first half.

FURNISH POWER

Jimmy Gilkes, Pat Rowe and Johnny Mike Sullivan, who ran across for three touchdowns, furnished most of the power for the Bronks, but the collegians uncovered some smart plays, especially in the last half.

It is not intended that championship play should be made a regular feature of the game. The idea is to provide a means of entertainment for the fans.

Approximately 80 yards long from the line of scrimmage, the Bronks' backfield piled up big gains, bringing the score to 14 points in the first half.

GRADS WIN HOP TROPHY, 41-27

Last Quarter Rally Halts Wichita Team

By JACK DEARIN
DANN, about four feet and some 90 pounds of the finest bundle of basketball ability cutting capers in the cage business on this continent, or any continent for that matter, was the pacemaker for the Edmonton Commercial Grads as they defeated Wichita Thursdays 41-27 at the Arena Saturday night.

It was the initial triumph for the Grads in their final best-of-five series in defence of the Underwood trophy, emblematic of international ladies' basketball supremacy. The second game of the series will be played tonight at the Arena, starting at 9:00 p.m.

Dann was the consistent Grads sharpshooter. She led the team with 15 points. Her points were made up of six field baskets and three free throws. Ett's accuracy was one of the highlights of the Grads triumph as her shooting was slightly better than 90 per cent. She made six field baskets in 12 tries and netted three free throws.

WON TROPHY EVENT
The Miss Dann started in the feature event of the evening—the first game of the series. Miss Dann competed against Myrtle Shiever, clever Wichita forward and three times winner of the U.S. national free throw competition. Ett's netted the first 12 times out of a possible 20.

Wichita kept within seven points of the Grads until Corne Smith went to the sidelines, completely exhausted. With Smith and Shiever on the Grads, the Grads started to roll to a greater margin. Jean Williams and Ett's team led the Grads in the third quarter as Shiever and Shook shot the invaders into the arms of the Grads.

Shiever widened the Grads margin a few seconds later on a neat lay of shooting. Ned McDonald's team took a greater toll and while Miss Pinkerton stood on the quarter by scoring three consecutive points for Wichita, Grads took the U.S. basket from them on.

WORLD SERIES AT HOME WITH YANKS

Chicago Wins Flag With Smashing Finish

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—World series interest blazed at fever heat throughout Chicago today as the city raced to complete preparations for the opening game between the Cubs and Yankees here at Wrigley Field on Wednesday.

It was a slam-bang 15th attack by the Cubs behind a masterly pitching performance by Charlie Root that put the Wrigley team into the world series late Saturday afternoon when they walloped the Cubs 10-3 in the second half of a double-header. Chicago lost the first half of the twin bill 4-3, but they clinched their third National League pennant in seven years when Pittsburgh took a 9-6 beating in Cincinnati Saturday afternoon.

Phil K. Wrigley, Jr., youthful owner of the Cubs, remained at the baseball offices of late personally directing a force of 70 men mailing out the last batches of season tickets. The mainstay of the supply of 19,000 reserved grandstand seats and 17,000 box seats at Wrigley Field would be exhausted quickly.

Because the Cubs didn't clinch the championship until Saturday, a force of workers was busy all day Sunday converting the magnificent ball park into its world series setting for the first two games with the Yankees Wednesday and Thursday.

The betting genius made the Yankees a 2 to 5 favorite over the Cubs according to quotations from Broadway's Jack Doyle, the odds are 2 to 1 against the Cubs winning the series. The betting on the first game is 1 to 2 against the Yankees and 3 to 2 against the Cubs.

Cubs Save Regulars; Lose Final Game

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 3.—Using a makeshift lineup to give some of the regulars a rest, the champion Chicago Cubs dropped their clinching game to the Yankees 10-3 Sunday, 7-5.

Even in losing, Cubs tied a National League record by winning the series with only 39 victories, tying the mark set by the St. Louis Cardinals for the least number of wins by a championship club playing a full 154-game National League season.

Paul Dean hurled the first six innings for Cards and was credited with the win.

JOHNNY LONES CHANCE
Johnny Moe, Card first sacker, looked to beat the Yankees in the first game of a double-header, but the lightning bolted when he went into the box.

The Cubs sewed up their third pennant in seven years Saturday by knocking Cards to the second game of a double-header, while their rivals, Pittsburgh Pirates, were losing at Cincinnati. St. Louis won the opener 4-3.

IT-HIT MARRAGE

The victory secured a 17-11 attack on four St. Louis pitchers, played Gabby Hartnett's recapture two full games after he had been awarded a pennant, a surge which saw the Cubs, standing fourth only six months ago, win 21 of their last 23 games.

Charlie Root, 35-year-old veteran of 10 campaigns with Cubs, turned in a masterful hurling performance, allowing only two extra hits in the last six innings and then got off to a shaky start.

Major Ball Winds Up One Of Best Seasons

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The 1933 big league baseball season, one of the most successful financially in years, began history Sunday and only the world series, starting in Chicago Wednesday between the Yankees and Cubs, remains.

It was a year of some of the most exciting home runs, featuring Hank Greenberg individually, and, as usual, the Yankees as a team; of the most spectacular stretch fight in 30 years for the National league pennant; of Johnny Vander Meer's record job of two straight no-hit, no-run pitching performances.

INQUIRY AGAIN REQUESTS USE OF DOCUMENTS

OTTAWA, Oct. 3.—A third request for the use of confidential British sources in the investigation into the Breen gun contract will be cabled to London, it was decided today's sitting of the investigation under Mr. Justice H. H. Davis.

The suggestion was made by Lord Chief Justice George Brien, whose criticism of the trial, following a magazine article led to the inquiry, was instantly censured in by Hon. J. H. Balston, government counsel.

The crisis which prevailed a few days ago has passed, fortunately, and Lord Brien's criticism is now making a request on the ground might embarrass the British government at a critical time has lost its force.

"I am sure absolutely," said Col. Balston, "if Col. Drew will indicate the message he wishes to convey, I will pass it on to the department."

Here Are Two Sample Puzzle Drawings

This puzzle drawing suggests "Robber Hood Out" the trade name of a soap-shower product.

The avian puzzle-drawing suggests "Hasn't Scratched Yet" the Slogan of Bon-Ami.

IF YOU KNOW . . .

that Robb's "Hasn't Scratched Yet" that first prize (a 1939 "Cadillac") that The Prudential Insurance Co. "Has the Strength of Substantive" that Palmolive soap helps you "Keep that Smiling Complexion" that "More People Ride on Goodrich Tires Than On Any Other Kind" of course you do—then you may win a $300 Motor Car or any one of the other big prizes offered Businessmen in this popular "Advertisers Puzzle Contest." The total value of the prizes exceeds THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS.

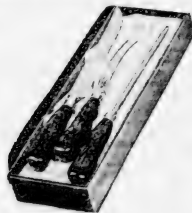

HERE'S THE IDEA . . .

The Edmonton Bulletin has compiled a comprehensive list of nationally advertised products, everything from toothpaste to automobiles—articles you use in your home, office or factory. In this list are included many famous advertising slogans such as those mentioned in this announcement. From this list the Contest Editor has selected with him "Trade Names and Slogans" from which puzzle drawings are being prepared. Contestants will be required to solve these puzzle drawings in accordance with a few simple rules. That is positively all there is to it.

LOVE OF LIBERTY IS SUBJECT OF BOWEN ADDRESS

Love of liberty forms the central theme of the English race, His Honor J. C. Bowen, Lieutenant-Governor of Alberta, told the Kiwanis Club Monday noon at the Macdonald hotel.

Pointing out that the desire to be free is a conviction, and free from dictation, was the force responsible for the English race, the speaker traced the development of liberty in England and Europe.

The Great Charter signed by King John was the first formal declaration of the rights of the individual and the status of the state. He said in developing his theme of "Nation of Ideas."

Later, this basic document was amplified by historic interpretations upon a free-born nation, in the Bill of Rights, securing a categorical statement of the rights attendant upon a free-born nation.

The information was described by Bowen as a "free-born nation," another great stride towards liberty.

Need of standing vigilantly on guard to protect liberty from the challenge to which it is being exposed today, was Bowen's theme.

Various ways, was voiced by the speaker.

At their first meeting of the fall session held in their downtown Edmonton recently members of the Edmonton Watch of the B'nai B'rith, after the adjournment of the annual year, J. G. Walker was elected president, I. K. Logan, secretary, and J. H. Logan, treasurer.
